Harris Springs.

During the last ten days the editor has spent a couple of days at Harris Springs, and part of his family was there for two weeks. There is no question of there being virtue in the water, as those who go there and give it a fair test readily testify. Mr. Garrett of the hotel was kind and attentive, and altogether we have been well satisfied and highly pleased; and when the virtue of the water is generally known the Springs will be more largely patronized, though there have been large numbers there this year.
